

WAITING AND DREAMING.

THE LAY OF AN UNREQUITED LOVE.

I waited once for the spring to come On joyous wing from its southern home,
Or labor of the faithful husband,
And eagerly watched for its blooming feet;
For I knew where to find the wind-flowers sweet,
And the nooks where the violets grew.

And I waited, too, for my roses bright To unfold their leaves in the summer light;
And among the many there,
Was one bud fairer than all the rest,
One that I loved, for its far the best,
And guarded with tenderest care.

Ah! never was breast than mine more lone Or bitterer tear-drops shed,
When I found that a worm its heart had torn,
And my rose was withered and dead.

I waited again for my "life" to bloom—
I dreamed by night, and more, and more,
I dreamed that which would be so fair;
It haunted my thoughts, and grew to be,
With its deep and hidden mystery,
Its untold treasures rare.

The one great end, to which my soul Looked forth as to a happy goal.

Ah! would that the mystic chain Which my fancy wore, and whose magic gleams, Were forever shining in my dreams, Might come to me again!

I watched for the morning light to shine
On this rare and radiant flower of mine, Whose blossom would soon be blown;
The sun rose fair,—but his earliest ray Chased away my dream of hope away—
The joy of my life was flown.

For cold despair with a poisoned dart Transfigured my flower to its utmost part,
And my lips made mud, made mean.

I had raised me an airy castle, in the morning soft and bright;
And my heart had climbed with eager feet, up its winding stair of light;
I knew its walls were built of rainbow, and mist, and cloud, Yet still on its topmost turret I had waited secure and proud;
I waited and watched for "him," whom my soul long yearned to greet,
Who would come to me, and I thought, "Ah! foolish me!"
That the castle "I" had built, the joy of "my" life would be,
That together we should wander through its halls so grand and fair;
That his touch would change my rainbows to arches of jewels rare;
And that all my dream-work, beneath his gentle tread,
And the glance of his wondrous eyes, would be gold of burning red.

He came at last!
I saw the halo round his brow,
And heard the sound that thrills me now—
His bugle blast.

Oh! it was hard;
I stretched my arms to him with one wild cry:
But with a cold, cold glance, he passed me by,
No sign of recognition in his eye—
No loving word!

My castle fell;
His shining bowers of mist dissolved in tears;
For that one glance dissolved the dream of years—
"Farewell! Farewell!"

My poor heart cried,
As crushed and broken on the ground I lay;
Bleeding and bruised, it moaned its life away,
And died.

Dreaming no more of him,
I am waiting now in the twilight dim,
For an angel's voice and hand,
To tell me the longings of life are past,
And guide to that happy home at last,
In the far-off sunset land.

I dream of that region so bright and fair,
I dream of that bliss that shall meet me there,
Where my flower shall bloom again;
I wait for the joys of the life divine,
Where angels' loving hearts shall twine,
Their tendrils around this heart of mine;
And I shall not wait in vain.

Ginger Beer.—Turn 2 gallons of boiling water on 3 pounds of brown sugar, or to quart of molasses, add 1 ounce of cream tartar, and the same of ginger, etc. when well, and put it into a cask. When milk-warm, put in a half a pint of good yeast, stopping the cask close, and shaking it well. Bottle it in about twenty-four hours. In ten days it will sparkle like champagne. One or two lemons sliced in, will much improve it.

LEMON DEER.—To a gallon of water add a sliced lemon, a spoonful of ginger, a pint of yeast, and sugar enough to make it quite sweet.

Black Lemonade.—Pour a pint of boiling water on 6 ounces of loaf sugar, add 4 of a pint of lemon juice, and half the quantity of good sherry wine. Then add 4 of cold milk, and strain the whole, to make it clear.

But should never be allowed to callect in knives, but if by carelessness such a calamity should occur, the spot must be well washed with sweet oil, and put by for 3 or 4 days, then rubbed with soft leather and a little lime.

Not a Day Law.—In the XII Table of the ancient Romans was this law: "Let not a son, whose father has so far neglected his education as not to teach him a trade, be obliged to maintain his father in want." That parent who fails to teach his child how to make an honest living, has certainly neglected his duty to that child; and who can tell to what the vicissitudes of fortune may reduce him? Many a man, because he had not a trade to fall back on, in some latter hour of fortune, has fallen a prey to melancholy or become a burden to his friends or society. Now if a father exposes his son to such contingencies, what right has he to claim a support from that son, when he comes to want? To be sure, there is in this more of law than of gospel, but we are speaking of simple justice.—Exchange.

On the last day of the session of one of the Presbyterian conventions in New York, a lad, whose father had entertained some half dozen preachers, entered the room where the ministers were seated in a terrible state of excitement.

"What's the matter Isaac?" asked one,
"you seem excited."

"Excited! I ain't excited; I'm mad all over."

"What are you mad about, Isaac?" Don't you know it is wrong to suffer yourself to become angered?"

"Wrong or not wrong, it's enough to make anybody mad but a preacher. Here's every chicken on the place eat up except the old rooster; and just now he happened to get a glimpse of your fellows and sung out, 'And must this feeble body die,' and dropped over stone dead."

THE LAW OF DIVORCE.—The Green- ville Enterprise says:

Judge Orr has rendered an adverse decision in the case of John H. Walker vs. Mary J. Walker, petition for divorce.
The case has been held under consideration since last court, and the legal profession will be indebted to the Judge for the very learned and able opinion in the case. We have examined this opinion; it will form a landmark in future cases.
The Judge distinctly indicates that the Court of Equity of this State always had the power to exercise jurisdiction in divorces cases. We have long been of the opinion, notwithstanding the uniform disclaimers of the Judge, and have always believed that a Court of Equity could and ought to have granted divorces where there existed the proper justification. It is manifest that Judge Orr would restrict the granting of divorces to cases of the most aggravated character, and he would not suit Chicago or the State of Connecticut.

suspected of being one who attempted the assassination of Wellington, is just dead in Paris.

PLANTATION BITTERS

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomach-ics. As a remedy for the nervous weakness to which women are especially subject, it is superbly effective. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

Wherever it is introduced it becomes a standard article—a medicinal staple. It is to-day the best and purest tonic, and the most popular medicine in the civilized world—be sure and get the genuine. Sold by all Druggists, Grocers and Country Stores.
